Growing up in San Jose can be an honorable yet daunting prospect. A city of a million people all with amazing stories. I serve and have served on state commissions and local boards and have a great appreciate for the work we do to ensure the safety, securing and pursuit of happiness for all we serve. My job at Intel allows me the opportunity to work with the local non-profit community to help identify the needs where Intel might invest our philanthropic dollars. This past election re-awakened my interest to make a difference wherever and whenever I can. I love the City of San Jose; i have traveled around the world and there really is no other place like it. I believe I can bring a strong experienced corporate perspective to the commission; I also have a skill of convening like minded people to help solve an issue.
