OFFICE OF RACIAL EQUITY: WELCOMING SAN JOSE PLAN 2.0 MONITORING AND EVALUATION PLAN

The Office of Racial Equity's (ORE) monitoring and evaluation plan is the foundation for program evaluation for ORE's three-year Welcoming San José Plan 2021-2024 (WSJ Plan). The explicit purpose of the evaluation plan is to ensure that collective efforts are accomplishing what is wanted and expected of the WSJ Plan. The evaluation plan forms part of a larger process that includes data collection and analysis – which provides the opportunity for ORE to incorporate data as feedback. In turn, this feedback is used to continually improve the scope of the work and to make adjustments to ORE's goals and objectives over time. The need for a robust evaluation plan reflects the need to ensure that the strategies outlined within the WSJ Plan are not merely aspirational, but measurable and achievable.

The WSJ evaluation plan is unique in that it describes both the internal, direct work of the Immigrant Affairs (IA) team as well as the work of its community partners. As the IA team is not a direct service provider, it relies on the efforts and activities of frontline community partners in order to implement programming that advances the Plan's strategies. The IA team then collaborates with those organizations as conveners, connectors, supporters, facilitators, and advocates to support this work and to influence City systems to be more welcoming and accessible to the immigrant community. Therefore, the evaluation plan tracks the quarterly progress towards all strategies, regardless of who is directly responsible for the individual activities that form part of that work. The entire WSJ Plan is comprised of 23 strategies across four major pillars. The four pillars are:

- Leadership & Communications
- Access & Engagement
- Educational & Economic Opportunity
- Safe Communities

For each of these pillars, the WSJ evaluation plan depicts a quarterly outline of each strategy, all actions undertaken for the strategies within that pillar, expected outcomes (in qualitative or quantitative measures of outputs, as appropriate), an assessment of progress, additional context, and the data collection tool used to measure quantitative outputs. Every quarter, each strategy is assessed for level of effort, focus population and reach, as well as leads, grantees, or partners who will be advancing those activities. Every activity is then assigned a color which is coded to indicate whether an activity is on track, in progress, not started, or on hold. Given the scale of the entire plan, the number of strategies, as well as staff and community partner capacity, not every strategy will have activities every quarter. In those cases, strategies will be noted as on hold and deferred to a future quarter.

The evaluation plan also provides the framework by which external partners and direct practitioners in the field can provide feedback on the WSJ Plan's progress on an ongoing basis.

Evidence of Desired Results

The evaluation plan includes the evidence of desired results known as indicators. An indicator provides evidence that certain results have or have not been achieved.<sup>1</sup> An indicator is a specific, observable and measurable characteristic that can be used to show changes or progress a program is making toward achieving a specific outcome.<sup>2</sup> It is important to note that data indicators are not survey questions. Survey questions and the provided responses (i.e. multiple choices) are developed once data indicators are chosen.

Data Collection Plan

The evaluation plan describes the data that is routinely collected during the implementation of the quarterly activities. ORE has incorporated a data collection plan into the overall evaluation plan in order to regularly outline how the tools, instruments, and data sources will be used to collect the data as well as who will collect the data and the timeline for data collection and analysis. The data collection plan and its relevant instruments will evolve and develop over time as implementation of the WSJ Plan's strategies call for additional more complex and sophisticated tools in order to assess progress over the three-year timeframe of the plan.

Sample of the Evaluation Plan

Below is a sample of one of the quarterly versions of the evaluation plan. This specific example depicts what a completed, end-of-quarter version of the evaluation plan would look like for the Leadership & Communications pillar. As this sample represents the end of Q2 of the current fiscal year, it does not yet contain information for each of the sections that will eventually form part of the evaluation plan, namely the Advisory Team feedback and Data Collection Tool. Nonetheless, these fields are included to provide an orientation for what the full plan will contain.

Strategy 6: Support legislation that protects immigrant rights, provides a pathway for citizenship, legal permanent residency, or protected status including comprehensive immigration reform. Oppose efforts that remove due process rights, undermine the humanity of immigrants and refugees, weaken data privacy or confidentiality rights, and separate or require long-term detainment of families.
