

SOURCEWISE
COMMUNITY RESOURCE SOLUTIONS

November 10, 2020

Mayor and Councilmembers
City of San Jose

Re: Public Comment Item 3.3

Dear Honorable Mayor Liccardo and Councilmember:

Sourcewise is extremely honored and proud to continue to partner with the City of San Jose to provide rapid emergency food and necessities assistance to the City's most vulnerable populations. We understand that minority, disabled, older adult populations and families are greatly impacted by the pandemic. In partnership, our expanded Meals on Wheels program will deliver 14 healthy and nutritious home delivered meals to residents in need, while allowing individuals to remain safely in their homes.

Our dedicated team of diverse professionals thanks you for your generous support.

Sincerely,

Aneliza Del Pinal
CEO, Sourcewise

Blair Beekman. S.J. city council. November 10, 2020. Item 3.3

b. beekman

Tue 11/10/2020 11:31 AM

To: Agendadesk <Agendadesk@sanjoseca.gov>;

[External Email]

Dear community of San Jose, and city govt,

With all of the work, to get food, to people in San Jose, with this item.

I just wanted to remind, of the good ideas, there can be, for healthy food handlers & growers, in the Central Valley.

And for, food handlers, in processing plants.

People of San Jose, and the Bay Area, can offer, educated, good ideas, including helpful, human rights, and worker rights ideas.

For Central Valley farm owners and food manufacturers, to understand this, creates an overall healthier system. From the food grown, in the ground, to our plate.

Healthy vegetables, good food, and healthy people, in all parts, of a food distribution chain, is an important way, to address Covid-19.

And how to mature, from this pandemic.

Sincerely,
Blair Beekman

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.