- Procurement Improvement: What's next

“I’m frustrated!”

What we sometimes hear:

- ☹️ “Procurements take too long.”
- ☹️ “We need to procure with speed.”
- ☹️ “I want to directly contract. This is the only vendor in the market that can do this. How do we do this?”
- ☹️ “It doesn’t cost that much; the risk is low so why couldn’t I get this?”
- ☹️ “[Procurement] seems to be in the way of everything that we’re trying to accomplish, whether its equity or efficiency improvements, whatever it is, procurement is always what is holding us back.”

Changing Perceptions

Procurement falsely viewed as a stand-alone bureaucratic process solely managed by Finance:

Procurement is a team effort that requires multiple stakeholder engagement and cooperation for success

Issues often attributed to “procurement problems” are due to:	How Finance-Purchasing Responds
Lack of awareness of the City Municipal Code procurement requirements	Educates customers on requirements and why such measures are in place
Incorrect information of purchasing processes	Regularly update Purchasing intranet website with tools, resources, checklists
Challenges with specification development which happens at the department level	Work extensively with department contacts to transform drafts to procurement-ready documents
Desired purchases are outside of City established standards or vendor pool	Steer purchases to City established standards and approved vendors
Contract negotiation challenges with vendors with material legal or business impact	Use procurement process as leverage; educate and align with department customers
Poor planning or Finance-Purchasing not engaged early or timely	Encourage early engagement with Finance; hold regular check-in meetings with key departments

Finance-Purchasing Contributions (Behind-the-scenes)

- ✓ Employ creative and innovative solutions for procurements while staying within Municipal Code requirements
- ✓ Provide business and strategic advice to departments in managing contracts and underperforming vendors
- ✓ Identify cross-departmental needs, consolidate procurements and establish City standards

NEXT STEPS

How we will work with you

The Guidehouse team will use a variety of tools to keep San Jose up-to-date on project activities, risks, and milestones

Updated Project Plan 	High-level work plan based on our understanding of the engagement's needs. During the first weeks of the project, Guidehouse will refine this plan with concrete tasks, durations, responsibilities, dependencies, and milestones that will be used to drive future activities
Weekly Status Report 	Weekly status report to project leadership at the end of each week highlighting: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>– Team's progress</li><li>– Next steps against the identified tasks and deliverables in the work plan</li><li>– Risks and issues</li><li>– Plans to mitigate concerns</li></ul>
Stakeholder Engagement Plan 	Given the many stakeholders involved in the project, we will develop and continue to build out a document that serves as an inventory of key information (e.g., lists of individuals, roles, organizations, interviews, etc.)
